

Live Auction

1 Dinner at the Turquoise Room Quantity: 6

The Turquoise Room was the name of a dining room on the famous Santa Fe Super Chief luxury train that ran from Chicago to Las Angeles for over 50 years. During the 1990's one of the last famous hotels on the Santa Fe line was restored and their dining room was named The Turquoise Room. Today, railroad and American history buffs go miles out of their way to stay and eat at the beautiful La Posada in Winslow Arizona. We'll be using antique menus and contemporary cookbooks to recreate the kind of dinner enjoyed by today's and yesterday's travelers in both The Turquoise rooms. We'll be talking about how our perception of the southwest was created by the Harvey company, the Santa Fe railroad and western movies made following the Santa Fe lines. As always, we'll be serving local, heritage ingredients with a side of lively conversation. This dinner will happen on Saturday, Feb. 3, 2018.

Fine Handmade Crafts

73 Blue and Green Neck Wrap Quantity: 1

Hand-knitted with pima cotton yarn in soothing blue and green. The wrap slips over your head and helps keep your neck warm in those cool transition days between seasons. And with no loose ends to deal with, it's less hassle than a scarf.

Donor: Rebecca Harrison
Value: $30.00
Minimum Bid: $15.00

74 Flashy Green Neck Wrap Quantity: 1

Use this wrap to cover your neck during the winter months when traveling outside. Just pop it over your head and away you go. It is basically a short cowl so there are no long ends with fringes to get tangled when you are speeding through the air! The bright green color will add a lot of zest to your basic black cape. This cowl is hand woven with a soft cotton blend as the warp. The weft adds variegated novelty yarn creating an asymmetrical pattern. Perfect for a superhero.
